When I (1) think about the past look back, one of the happiest periods of my life was between the ages of 5 and 11 when we lived on a tiny island. There were about six children on the island and we were taught by our parents. We spent a lot of time playing on the beach and in the fields as our parents thought that was a good way to (2) learn about life. They (3) told us about any activities that were really dangerous but most of the time we (4) weren't punished for doing all kinds of naughty things and we had to (5) solve any problems or arguments ourselves. Of course, we all preferred being outside to studying and (6) delayed doing our homework as long as we could. Despite this, we (7) succeeded in our exams and it all (8) ended well as most of us have good jobs now, but none of us still lives on the island.

Studying Abroad

Have you always dreamed of traveling, meeting lots of different people, and maybe picking up a language or two? No matter what country you live in, you can fly over the world's highest waterfalls in Venezuela, learn world trade in Japan, study in France, or take dancing lessons in Ghana.

How? Semester, summer, and year-long programs allow you to attend school, take intensive language courses, or perform community service in another country. Read on to learn more about study abroad programs.

Besides the excitement of travel, you will experience new customs, holidays, foods, art, music, and politics firsthand. This is because your viewpoint will be of an active member of the community, not as a tourist.

Another reason for studying abroad is that you'll become more self-assured. Christina studied in Caracas, Venezuela, a city of ten million people and a huge change from her hometown of 35,000! Christina says she learned how to be better at standing up for herself and her beliefs, and to express herself in another language. In addition, living away from home can also help you adjust in the transition to college and adulthood. Matthew says when he returned from studying in Australia, he was more mature and had a genuine interest in international affairs that really set him apart from his peers. 'After having gone abroad in high school, I found the transition to college to be straightforward – moving 560 miles from home didn't seem particularly daunting after having lived thousands of miles away.'

Although many academic programs abroad have academic requirements, you do not necessarily have to have the highest grades or marks to be eligible. Who you are is as important as your academic record. Study programs abroad look for students who are independent, self-assured, enjoy having new experiences and meeting different types of people, and can handle challenges.

If you really hate change and don't like the idea of figuring things out all on your own, then studying abroad may not be for you. It's important to be honest with yourself and really think about what you expect. Of course, if you want to change those things about yourself and don't mind tackling them head on, then studying abroad may be an ideal way to take the plunge.

Are you convinced that a year abroad is for you, but you're worried that your parents will never go for it? Explain that studying abroad is a chance of a lifetime and that it offers great academic opportunities.

You might also sell them on the idea that students in study programs abroad gain experiences by being in a new culture, broaden their horizons, and increase their maturity and self-confidence levels. And by studying abroad you will have an educational advantage when entering college or starting a career.

- A Use some of the points of view that sold you on the idea to explain why you want to study overseas.
- B But perhaps more importantly, the different circumstances mean you will learn a lot not only about cultures and people but also about yourself.
- C You could join a study program abroad, where high-school and college students live with a host family in a foreign country.

- D What could give you more self-confidence than that?
- E You will have forgotten any doubts you once had about your decision.
- F And most do not have language requirements.
- G You could end up having a miserable time if you don't!

Listening | Part 3

06 You will hear five short extracts in which people are talking about why they are doing a course. For questions 1–5, choose from the list (A–H) the reason each speaker gives. Use the letters only once. There are three extra letters which you do not need to use.
